

Years of success built on a local foundation

Since being founded in Louisville, KY in 1978 by Joe Kelley, Sr., Kelley Construction has experienced four decades of success built on a foundation of confidence, trust and integrity. These principals remain the core values that are inherent in every project they undertake. It is this philosophy that keeps their relationships strong and lasting and has allowed Kelley Construction to grow and flourish into the company it is today.

No matter how a company grows, the values of the founder become a part of its DNA, passed on through successive generations. Today, Joe Kelley serves as President and Mark Kelley as Vice President. They are both lifelong residents of Louisville, Kentucky.

Mark Kelley, Vice President of Kelley Construction states, "We hold ourselves to being honest, accountable and honorable in our work. Our integrity is paramount in our people and our projects. We stick to the highest standards in the industry because our clients depend on us and we value the honor of having their trust."

"We have been honored to serve the great Louisville community over the last 4 decades."

– Joe Kelley

Kelley is the new culture of construction, innovating and elevating the building experience via insight, technology and talent. They possess a joy for building and a passion for delivering service excellence to partners who appreciate the difference. This dedication is applied to all the markets they serve: Commercial, Healthcare, Food Service and Industrial.

Not only has Kelley Construction been a part of growing and changing the landscape of Louisville, but they also have a passion for giving back and investing in their local community. This commitment has earned them recognition as one of the top 20 private companies in Louisville for more than half a decade.

Kelley Construction has continued to expand and progress as the industry itself has changed. They pride themselves on being on the cutting edge of technology and have implemented practices and systems that allows them to exceed their customers' expectations. "We don't just like to keep up with the market, we like to stay ahead of it," says Joe Kelley, President of Kelley Construction.

When being asked what sets Kelley Construction apart from their competitors and what has made them so successful over the last 40 years, Joe and Mark both have the same opinion, "It's our people and our culture." Kelley Construction prides itself on being an excellent employer. "Our people are what makes our company what
